Social Entrepreneur of the Year Award India - 2012

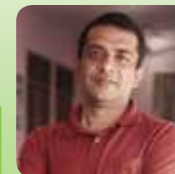

Anshu Gupta, Goonj, receiving the award from Sheila Dikshit as Shyam S. Bhartia, Chairman and Managing Director, Jubilant Life Sciences and Founder Director of Jubilant Bhartia Foundation looks on.

On 6th November 2012, The Schwab Foundation for Social Entrepreneurship, a sister organization of the World Economic Forum, in partnership with the Jubilant Bhartia Foundation announced Anshu Gupta, Goonj as the Social Entrepreneur of the Year India 2012. The award was conferred by Hon'ble Chief Minister of Delhi, Smt. Sheila Dikshit at a ceremony held at New Delhi and attended by the other finalists and eminent personalities from government, business, media and social sector.

Winner Profile

Goonj

Social entrepreneur: Anshu Gupta

Field: Community Work Headquartered at: New Delhi

Year of Establishment: 1999 Legal Form of Business: not-for-profit organization www.goonj.org

Udyogini

Goonj has demonstrated that cloth can be a powerful resource for the development of India's poorest communities. It channels excess resources lying waste in urban households to impoverished rural and disaster-prone areas. Materials include clothes, furniture, electronic equipment, and medical supplies. Village and slum communities, in exchange of cloth and material, conduct self-organized local development and infrastructure building programs, leading to more than 500 infrastructure projects every year – such as the setting up of schools, concrete roads, bridges, wells, irrigation canals and toilets across 1500 villages. Sourcing its material at collection camps in urban neighbourhoods and corporate offices, Goonj delivers 1000 tons of material every year through an extensive network of 500 volunteers, 200 schools, 200 corporate houses and 250 NGO partners across 21 states of India. Goonj's expansive; 'last-mile' networks have made it the most efficient channel for large-scale disaster rehabilitation in the country. Its programs have spurred behaviour change on both the demand and supply sides: marginal communities have begun to believe in their own capacity for catalyzing change while urban India is learning to contribute (rather than dispense) material, based on what the poor need.

Udyogini is setting up producer-owned, fair trade, rural value chains in agriculture and natural resources. Working in remote districts of five Indian states that are affected by poverty, Naxalism and broken enterprise ecosystems, Udyogini has put a new generation of tribal women entrepreneurs and female business development service providers, in charge of differentiated value chains, (such as craft, lac, vegetable production, sal, medicinal herbs and plants and incense-stick). Through its flagship Grassroots Enterprise Management training (GMT), high-touch incubation and business counseling, and access to finance and markets, Udyogini has directly impacted 25,000 producers and their families in the value chains that they nurture. 80% of Udyogini's customers are tribal and ultra-poor, reporting 50-100% increase in family incomes, higher negotiating capacities in distant urban markets and role model status in their own communities. Since 1992, more than 2000 organizations from India and other countries have trained in Udyogini's GMT programs and further gone on to train 100,000 women entrepreneurs (approximately) in their geographies.

NCPL is catalyzing the broken ecosystem of primary healthcare service delivery in rural India through its indigenous and award winning technology innovation, ReMeDi™ (Remote Medical Diagnostic) – a rural telemedicine and telediagnostic solution. The social enterprise works with NGO and government implementation partners to bring the entire healthcare value chain to areas with no clinic or hospital access. NCPL configures its ReMeDi™ platform in small village clinics to enable patient data transmission and high quality remote consultations with doctors located in cities, at internet bandwidths as low as 32 Kbps. It can be operated by local high-school graduates and functions on less than two watts of battery capacity. In the last year alone, ReMeDi™ has enabled 100,000 paid medical consultations, at less than USD 1 per consultation, in which 75% of the patients did not have to travel beyond their village for healthcare access. Villagers experience average cost savings of USD $6 per visit.

The award was organized in association with CNBC-TV18, Hindustan Times and Mint

The award has been given annually in the country since 2005 to individuals who have founded organizations or companies with targeted social missions benefiting underserved communities. The winners enter the global network of 200 leading social entrepreneurs of the Schwab Foundation for Social Entrepreneurship, a sister organization of the World Economic Forum.

Cattle Care Camp

Gajraula is an agrarian place where farmers ranging from large scale to marginal farmers are working to give a boost to Indian economy and the resident of Village - Bhikanpur Sumali are also farmers with a lot of cattle to support the same. In the same context we received a request from Gram Pradhan (Village Head) for a cattle health check-up camp as the animals are prone to ailments and diseases in the rainy month in this part of India. In response to their request Jubilant Bhartia Foundation organized a camp jointly with Block Veterinary Department where team of Veterinary Department examined the animals of Bhikanpur village. People came with their cattle and explained the problems with veterinary doctor and got their cattle with check-up as well as medicines for free. The team also briefed the villagers about common problems, their symptoms along with their remedies. The doctors also provided the people with Nutrition brick, mineral mixture, deworming tablets etc. Approximately 165 cattle were examined in the camp and it included cow, ox, buffalo, horse, goat and dog.

Observing World AIDS Day

World AIDS Day, observed on 1 December every year, is dedicated to raising awareness of the AIDS pandemic caused by the spread of HIV infection. Government and health officials observe the day, often with speeches or forums on the AIDS topics. The theme for year 2012 is "GETTING TO ZERO". The theme suggests that awareness should be taken to the level that the people get aware and the cases of AIDS drop to zero. The day was observed at all units including corporate office.

Jubilant Bhartia Foundation has been working since long towards this cause and thus has a registered Integrated Counseling & Testing Center (ICTC) which caters in identification of HIV infected people and their proper counseling. JBF also regularly organizes several awareness campaigns and since its inception has generated mass awareness through promotional material, rallies and distribution of contraceptives.
